Tour the Big Trees on Terry Trail
Her Legacy Lives On
I was very fortunate to have parents who instilled in me a sincere love for all things natural. As a child, I counted among some of my best friends the enormous Tulip Poplar which held court down on the banks of the Coosawattee, and the Red-Tail Hawk which hunted from its branches every morning. I was led to experience the smell and feel of the forest when the first rays of sun sliced through the trees' branches, and the beauty in the stars of a "New Moon night" as they stretched from horizon to horizon.

Having never lived in a city for any real length of time until moving to Atlanta, it never dawned on me that some people have never taken a walk in a forest. As I began interacting with different people, and sharing my childhood experiences, many were amazed that I would risk, and actually enjoyed, interacting with the snakes, spiders, and other crawly things that my city friends thought would surely eat me in the woods. For these folks, having been raised in the city, the forest was simply not a part of their environment, sometimes scary, and not necessarily worthy of protection. I realized then that we can - and must - do better.

After moving to Huntsville in 2008, I was amazed to discover an organization, the Land Trust of North Alabama, had succeeded in protecting thousands of acres of forests right in the heart of the city. Unlike in most cities, Huntsville parents could take their children to the woods and help them make new friends of the trees and animals.

Now, twelve years later, I give silent thanks to those dedicated and forward-thinking residents who first took steps to save our forests in Huntsville. Every day, I am awed and inspired by our teams of volunteers who show up week in and week out to continue the work of conservation and preservation. Every day, I am thankful to be part of a community that recognizes what we have, and what we never want to lose. What excites me most is being part of a community that recognizes we can still do better and will work tirelessly to achieve that goal.

Heath Brooks · 2019 Board Chairman
Honeysuckle - Not So Sweet

For many people growing up in the south, honeysuckle triggers memories of hot summer days. The small yellow and white blooms of the Japanese honeysuckle vine offer a fragrant scent and sugary sweet nectar. Although prevalent, Japanese honeysuckle whether in the vine form or bush, is actually a not-so-welcome invasive species, meaning it is not native to this area. While there are native vine and bush species of honeysuckle in Alabama, they do not run rampant like the Asiatic versions. The presence of non-native plants can create problems when they begin to replace native plants in the environment. Unfortunately, Asiatic honeysuckle is one example of a very common invasive plant species in our area. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, as these species grow unchecked, “they may modify vegetation structure, the fire regime, hydrology, soil erosion rates, and forage production. These changes in turn can have significant effects on wildlife populations.”

As part of our land management practices, Land Trust of North Alabama attempts to control the spread of or eliminate invasive species to allow recovery of native flora. This is an incredibly challenging task and the best method of doing so isn’t always clear.

In 2015, Callie Schweitzer from the U.S. Forest Service’s Southern Research Station approached the Land Trust of North Alabama about a research project using our property. The project would provide helpful insight into best management practices for the control of bush honeysuckle in north Alabama forests with the added goal of promoting natural hardwood reproduction. We were more than happy to provide the testing area at Monte Sano Nature Preserve near the intersection of Bankhead Parkway and Tollgate Road, an ideal location to exhibit outcomes on a high recreational use property. Bush honeysuckle was treated using four methods and treatment areas were monitored periodically to evaluate results. Insight gained from this study will impact the Land Trust’s future treatment strategies and the testing area will continue to be monitored going forward to see how results of each treatment option persist over time. Learn more about the project and its findings at landtrustnal.org/blog/honeysuckle-not-so-sweet.
You Made All the Difference and Still Can

In 2019, the Land Trust was presented with two exceptional conservation opportunities. The problem? The balance in the acquisition fund was insufficient to preserve them both. For the first time in many years, we appealed directly to our community-at-large for help to raise the money needed to save target land acquisitions within tight fundraising deadlines. The result? All 113 acres preserved in 2019 were saved because you contributed to make it possible! What made the past year truly momentous was community support for strategic land purchases to make your conservation vision a reality.

These 2019 acquisitions were deemed significant because of their conservation value and strategic location, providing critical connections of wildlife and recreation corridors. On Chapman Mountain, 86 acres were protected to offer a safe haven for plants and animals in a highly developed area of the city and enhance existing public recreation space. On Green Mountain, 27 acres completed an important missing piece in the River to Gap puzzle.

We hope to continue that momentum in 2020 with your help by preserving another 214 key acres. A 92 acre property on the south end of Blevins Gap Nature Preserve has been targeted to continue the River to Gap connection towards Green Mountain Nature Preserve and the Tennessee River. A second exciting opportunity to protect 122 acres on the northeast corner of Monte Sano would expand preserved land on the mountain. This acquisition would protect a popular portion of trails, including Panther Knob and Logan Point Trails allowing navigation around Logan Point.

Find more information about these strategic acquisitions and how you can contribute at landtrustnal.org/preserve.
Diverse Spaces & Partners

Land Trust of North Alabama now manages seven public recreation preserves (our 8th coming this year). It would be impossible for our staff to maintain these venues for free outdoor recreation without many dedicated stewardship partners - including individuals, businesses, schools, service organizations, and a variety of funding partners. Volunteers contribute in so many ways - leading trail work events, installing fencing, mowing grass, cutting new trails, clearing fallen trees, providing professional services, and the list goes on. Support for these projects comes from individual time, enrollment in our Trail Care Partner program, corporate team building events, and monthly volunteer workdays. The Land Trust provides our community many diverse spaces to play in nature, but to do so it takes diverse partnerships.

REI Co-op is new to Huntsville but wasted no time getting involved. They joined us for a corporate team build in September as an opportunity for their new employees to get to know each other and work together. Their partnership continues this year as Trail Care Partners for Chapman Mountain’s Bulldog Trail. The REI team will volunteer through service projects throughout the year at Chapman Mountain.

Madison County Commission - District 3 offered assistance creating the gravel parking lot and accessible loop trail at Bethel Spring Nature Preserve last fall. A team spent several days completing work that would have taken us much longer and required a significant number of volunteers as well as special equipment rentals.

Dynetics Young Professionals signed up to serve as a Trail Care Partner at the beginning of 2019 and adopted Bluffline Trail. As Trail Care Partners, they agreed to monitor and maintain their adopted trail at least quarterly. However, last year, the Land Trust tackled a sustainable restoration of Bluffline with funding from the National Environmental Education Foundation so the team from Dynetics worked with us much more frequently and became an integral part of the project.

Madison Rotary Club holds trail care work days to clean up and keep an eye out at Rainbow Mountain Nature Preserve. They spent several days last year cleaning up graffiti on the rocks that make Rainbow Mountain so spectacular.

Alpha Foundation awarded the Land Trust a grant to complete the Bethel Loop Trail at Bethel Spring Nature Preserve in 2019. This crushed gravel trail will make the outdoors more accessible for many.

Hats off to Local Scouts

Each year, the scouting community provides essential support for the construction and maintenance of Land Trust trail systems. Through troop or pack service projects and Eagle Award Projects, scouts offer enthusiastic help to continually improve our trails and trail infrastructure. In 2019, scouts completed 11 significant projects in the Huntsville/Madison County area. These projects included construction or installation of new boardwalks at Harvest Square and Green Mountain, trail intersection markers and benches at Blevins Gap and Chapman Mountain, footbridges at Monte Sano, Chapman Mountain, and Green Mountain, and T-boxes for the new disc golf course at Chapman Mountain.

8th Public Preserve Coming Spring 2020

On February 29, we'll officially open a brand new public preserve! When opened, Bethel Spring Nature Preserve in southeast Madison County will offer 1.8 miles of trails, including an accessible trail loop. The highlight of the property is an impressive waterfall! Details coming soon!
Tour the Big Trees on Terry Trail

If you've ever been on one of our guided hikes, you know that exploring the trails with an expert who can share details about the plants and creatures you encounter is a unique treat. We're always looking for ways to enhance the hiking experience and provide content even as you explore the trails on your own. Now, a hike along Chapman Mountain’s Terry Trail provides insight from local foresters. The Society of American Foresters - Mountain Lakes Chapter created and funded the Big Tree Tour on Terry Trail. Informational signage along the trail now indicates many of the preserve’s largest trees and identifies the species and diameter of each tree, as well as a fun fact. You'll also notice additional signs that provide a tree number. These numbers correspond to expanded content available online. QR codes at the Trailhead kiosk and at entrances to Terry Trail will direct you to the online trail tour from your mobile device.

Check it out for yourself! Visit Chapman Mountain Nature Preserve, take a hike along Terry Trail and follow along at landtrustnal.org/treetour.

Building a Love for Nature

Each year, local elementary students are given the chance to attend residential overnight outdoor education with their schools. For many, it is a life-changing experience in connecting with nature and their classmates. However, many students remain home due to a variety of challenges. Often, these children need time in nature the most. In November, we took a group of these students from Rainbow Elementary on a three day environmental education adventure - our longest program yet. Led by local experts, the program featured multiple Land Trust properties and highlighted the unique offerings of each preserve. The week began at Harvest Square for a day in the pond exploring water ecology and macroinvertebrates. Our second day took us to Monte Sano for a live raptor presentation and a search for fossils around Three Caves. Our final day at Green Mountain, we learned about the evidence left by Native Americans on Alum Hollow Trail and then hiked back to the trailhead, flipping logs and rocks along the way on a hunt for reptiles and amphibians. Throughout each day, the kids became more and more enthralled with nature and by the end, they were sad to leave our trails.

With education at the core of the Land Trust mission, our goal is to continue to build this love for nature in children with even more programs scheduled for 2020. This effort will be further propelled by a $9,200 grant from Toyota Motor Manufacturing Alabama to be used towards the creation of curriculum for school-aged programs.
Her Legacy Lives On
by Hallie Porter

“I’m so excited about leaving this legacy!”
- Bonnie Tondera

In August of 2019, this world lost an incredible soul. Bonnie Jo Tondera, born in 1934, was stubborn, quick to laugh, tough as nails, smart as a whip, more courageous than anyone I know, and accomplished in so many ways. She was a devoted volunteer of the Land Trust for years. But what I loved most about Bonnie was her passion for and knowledge of wildflowers, and her patient teaching of me with my lack of knowledge. Bonnie began working with the Land Trust back in 2017 with the sole intent of preserving “her” mountainside. Her goal? - to create a place where families could get outside and enjoy the mountains and forests that she loved so much. By the end of 2018, her dream to preserve 78 acres of Keel Mountain forever became a reality. And what was her response? Upon returning from an outing on Keel Mountain, she popped her head into the open car window and with her eyes full of spark, she said “I am really excited about preserving this land and leaving a legacy!”

Bonnie is sorely missed, but her legacy lives on in the lives she has touched and in the land she has preserved. Her preserve, when opened to the public, will be a place to wander and explore. It will be a place to experience incredible natural wonders including her precious wildflowers. And for me, it will be a place to remember and celebrate the life of an incredible woman.

Leaving a legacy is so much more than just saving land. If you have questions about preserving a legacy of your own, please contact Hallie Porter at 256-534-5263.

A Lasting Gift

Friends and family of Michael Shales honored his memory and his love for the outdoors with a memorial gift, providing the Land Trust's first bike repair station at Monte Sano's Bankhead Trailhead.
